Charge of Wife in Fayette Court.

Striking his wife with a chair so hard that he broke her arm will cost Steve Kermes of Royal a year of his liberty. Following a plea of guilty, entered in court in Uniontown today, Kermes was sentenced to 12 months in the Allegheny County Workhouse on charges of assault and battery and battery and aggravated assault and battery. Another case is standing against Kermes, his wife having complained recently to the authorities of brutal treatment.

When Earl Strickler of Franklin township, charged with the paterfamilias by a young woman, of that section failed to appear on bond of $500 was declared forfeited.

The court granted an appeal in the case of Alva L. Morris of Nicholson township, who was fined $5 and costs for not having a son, Alva, in school. The case was heard before Justice of the Peace A. J. Fast. It is contended the boy was not in the county at the time he was charged he should have been in school and that at the time he was not in the custody of his father, Morris had previously been arrested for not having his son in school.

A verdict of not guilty was returned in the case of Henry Fatley of York Run charged with pointing firearms at Anthony Makus. The costs were equally divided.

Bail in the sum of $1,000 with F. W. Sherrick and S. E. Brock as sureties was forfeited Monday morning when the case of George D. Sherrick, veterinarian, of Connellsville, failed to answer when his name was called. Dr. Sherrick was charged with assaulting his wife by striking her with his clenched fist in the face, July 3, and also with striking her and cutting her with a butcher knife on August 13, last. Whereabouts of the doctor are unknown, it is said, but it is believed that he has gone South.

The grand jury ignored two bills of indictment against Joe Fatets of White-stone, charging fondle on information of Joe Spuckler and assault and battery, assault and battery with intent to ravish on information of Mrs. Mary Spuckler and placed the costs on the prosecutor and his wife.

Three libels in divorce were filed yesterday. Elsie Schindeldecker of Connellsville, is seeking a decree from Adam Schindeldecker of Connellsville, on grounds of cruelty. They were married on August 1, 1888, at Reynoldsville, Pa.

Julia Dede, Perryopolis, is seeking a divorce from Shandor Dede of Sabos, Hungary, on grounds of cruelty. They were married October 10, 1904, and she was compelled to leave him on December 15, 1904.

Sadie Miller, Uniontown, is seeking a decree from John W. Miller of Lewisburg on grounds of cruelty. They were married July 15, 1919, at Connellsville.

HARDING BREAKS PRECEDENT BY NOT GIVING MESSAGE

By Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Dec. 5.—President Harding broke a precedent today by permitting the second day of the new session of Congress to pass without his annual message, reporting on "the state of the union" and outlining the administration's recommendations for legislation.

It was said at the White House that no date had been fixed but that he expected to complete his message in time to deliver it before the end of the week. Officials added that formal explanation for the delay but indicated that pressure of public business had prevented compliance with the usual custom under which previous presidential messages have been placed in the hands of Congress on the first or second day of the session.

EXPENSES ARE NOT EXCESSIVE, SAYS
RED CROSS MANAGER

Following an examination of the budget of the Fayette County Red Cross Chapter for 1922-23, and in response to a letter from Executive Secretary W. P. Schenck, J. Arthur Jeffers, assistant manager of the Washington Division, under whose jurisdiction the county chapter operates, has written in approval of the expenditures made and proposed as follows:

"May I state that there has never been a time when I considered the overhead expenses of the Fayette County Chapter were excessive in the light of the services rendered. Knowing as I do something of the geography of Fayette county, and the distances to be covered and the type of service rendered, I have always felt that the work done by your home service workers and nurses has fully equalled the same kind of service rendered in other chapters.

"There is a disposition on the part of some persons very often to try and interpret Red Cross service in the light of the number of dollars expended. There is so much service our organization renders aside from material relief which cannot be put down in writing, that it does seem to me that those who are not familiar with the work should accept the statements of those who are closely related to the service rendered.

"I have gone over the budget for the year 1922-23 and in view of the fact that your chapter has handled home service to civilian families as well as to disabled ex-service men, I do not consider either the salaries or the relief expenses in any sense excessive. Personally, I congratulate you and your chapter upon the work which has been accomplished and the manner in which you have conformed to Red Cross policy and standards."

Clara Phillips,
Hammer Slayer,
Escapes Prison

By Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Dec. 5.—Clara Phillips climbed out of a window of the woman's section of the county jail and escaped today. She was under a sentence of 10 years to life imprisonment after conviction of the hammer murder of Albert Meadows. She was held in jail pending formulation of an appeal.

With the aid of several steel saws her escape was effected at 2 A. M. according to a report to the sheriff by the jailer. Beller was expressed who had been aided by other inmates. Bars were sawed, and after crawling out the window she dropped to the roof of an adjoining building, climbed down the fire escape and disappeared.

The escape was not discovered for several hours. The matron, making the rounds found the bed in her cell vacant. She then discovered the sawed and twisted bars and notified the jailers. The former chorists girl, who three weeks ago was found guilty of what prosecuting officials declared to be one of the most brutal murder they have had to try, affected her liberty with the suddenness with which the hammer slaying was revealed last July. It is believed she escaped in an automobile.

OPERATORS AND MINERS HAVE NO
WAGE SCALE PLAN*Strike or No Strike Next April
May Hinge on Session Opening Tomorrow.*VIEWS ARE DIVERGENT

By Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 5.—Union bituminous coal operators of the United States, gathered here to decide some method of negotiating a wage scale with the soft coal miners, next January, today went into their last separate meeting before going into a joint conference with the miners.

When today's session was called, according to spokesman for the operators, no plan or method had been agreed upon for presentation in the joint conference opening tomorrow. On the outcome of the joint conference, depends to a great extent the possibilities of another strike beginning in April, 1923, it was said. The operators and miners have presented divergent views of the methods for negotiating the scale January 2. This resulted in temporary adjournment of the conference last November. The operators have expressed a desire for some form of arbitration. The miners, according to President John L. Lewis, will not accept anything that savors of arbitration.

While it is known that the miners strongly favor a return to the old Central Competitive Field wage basis or some modification of it that will include more territory, the operators hesitate on this basis again because a number of them are under indictment for contracting with the miners under its terms.

BOY JUST OUT OF SCHOOL HURT
FATALLY BY CAR*Russell D. Klinedinst Dashes In

Russell D. Klinedinst, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Klinedinst of South Pittsburgh street, died at 2 o'clock this morning in the West Penn Hospital, Pittsburgh as a result of the fracture of the skull suffered yesterday afternoon when he was struck by the automobile driven by Jesse Ridgeway of Chestnut street, soon after the South Side school, at which he was a student, had been dismissed.

Mr. Ridgeway brought his car to a quick stop, picked up the child and rushed to the office of a physician. Later the boy was taken to his home and in the evening was removed to the hospital. The fracture was at the base of the skull.

The accident is said to have been unavoidable. The fact is reported to have suddenly darted from the sidewalk, his action being so quick that the car could not be stopped in time to save him. He always crossed the street at that spot when returning home after school hours. It was said.

An operation had been performed on the boy before death occurred. He was still in an unconscious condition when taken to Pittsburgh. His father and a physician accompanied him.

Westmoreland County Is Second in the State in Wealth and Coal Output

Special to The Courier.

GREENSBURG, Dec. 5.—In his address before the members of the Greenburg Chamber of Commerce and their guests in the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening, M. H. Gotschall, director of the bureau of statistics and information of the Pennsylvania Department of Internal Affairs, said that Westmoreland county in 1921 stood first in the production of bituminous coal in the State, the county producing 16,784,168 tons.

Assuming that 50 tons would be placed in a coal car, a total of 335,697 cars would be necessary to transport the county's coal production in 1921. Allowing 35 feet for each car, the speaker added, the mammoth coal train would cover a distance of 2,290 miles. The steamship, Majestic, commented the speaker, would be required to make 300 trips between New York and Liverpool to transport the production between those two cities, assuming that the vessel would carry 36,000 tons each trip.

As an ice cream producer, Mr. Gotschall said, the output of 267,879 gallons in the county last year was sufficient to give 5.4 gallons to each of the 49,587 families in the county between the ages of 18 and 14. And not forgetting the male population, the speaker said that the 1,123,000 cigars made in the county in 1921, would be enough to give 14 cigars to each of the 77,506 males in Westmoreland over 21 years of age.

Speaking of the production of rubber trees and tubes, Mr. Gotschall said that 49.5 per cent of the total production value of tires and tubes in Pennsylvania, was represented in Westmoreland county, the value of these articles being $12,537,200 in the county and $27,293,800 in the State.

Likewise, Westmoreland was a big producer of glass sand, 12.7 per cent of all the glass sand in the State in 1921 being recovered in Westmoreland county. The total production of glass sand in Pennsylvania was 426,258 tons and Westmoreland county's share of this was 54,272 tons.

Westmoreland county's coke industrial establishments turned out products having a value of $177,404,400 in 1921, declared Mr. Gotschall, discussing "The Romance of Industry in Westmoreland County."

The speaker pointed out that of the total value of industrial products in the county in 1921, products worth $77,225,900 were turned out in the towns of Jeannette, Scottdale, New Kensington, Latrobe, Monaca and Greensburg.

Going into the details of industry in Westmoreland county as a whole, Mr. Gotschall said that the 603 industrial establishments credited to the county gave employment to 50,707 persons.

Wage earners in the county last year were paid a total of $59,881,900 and of this amount $58,981,200 was paid to male workers while $897,700 was paid to female employees. The capital invested in the industries of the county totaled $187,861,400.

Mr. Gotschall showed by the records of the Department of Internal Affairs at Harrisburg that metal products and other industrial classes in the county. Metals and metal products had a value of $85,111,000 of which $35,768,500 represented the value of primary metal products and $49,342,500 the value of secondary metal products. The products of mining and quarries were worth $46,563,500 of which $45,816,300 represented the value of bituminous coal.

Member Become a Subscriber; Ten Times of 10 Members Each to Solicit Under Direction F. W. Wright

The members of the First Methodist Episcopal Church who are engaged in conducting the campaign to raise funds for the completion of their new church and Sunday school plant on South Pittsburgh street, made a notable start last evening toward securing $100,000 by the first of the year. At a dinner given the campaign organization in the dining room of the First Presbyterian Church the members of the canvassing teams who were present gave the movement decided impetus by subscribing $46,000. Had all the members of the teams been present it is believed the subscriptions would have totalled $50,000, or half of the amount desired to be raised by New Year's day.

The details of the campaign had been arranged at a meeting held on Sunday afternoon at which F. W. Wright, general chairman presided. Ten team captains were selected as follows: E. C. Moore, Lyell Butterman, S. P. Asher, R. M. Evans, J. B. Henderson, J. F. McCoy, E. J. L. Cochran, J. P. Tracy, D. H. Conn and L. K. Miller. Each team is to consist of 10 subscribers. A systematic distribution of the members among the teams has been made and a thorough canvass will be undertaken with the end in view of attaining the $100,000 goal and every member a subscriber by the close of the year.

Rev. Dr. B. W. Hutchinson, pastor, and Mr. Wright, chairman, gave, shortly after the conclusion of the dinner, outlining the scope of the campaign and stressing the necessity for achieving the goal. The suggestion was offered that the best way to begin the campaign was for the members of the teams present to make their subscriptions at once. Pledge cards were passed and within a very few minutes they were signed for an aggregate of a few hundred dollars in excess of $46,000.

The persons present manifested a remarkable degree of enthusiasm over the work in hand and the impression of everyone was that if the teams do their part with diligence there will be no question about the success of the campaign.

Duties of Citizenship

By the Sanaphran, Dumber Town ship High School

The United States should be said without boasting, is the greatest country in the world. Other countries look up to it, seek its advice, and follow its leadership. It is, therefore a great privilege, and one of which we should be proud to be a citizen of America.

There are so many great rights in this country that we hardly stop to think of the small, insignificant wronges taking place daily. The speed trower who presses his foot down on the accelerator does not realize that he is running with the law. He gets away with it." He does it again.
Perhaps he is caught - a small fine then in a few days he is again breaking the law.

The illustration is divided into two parts. On the left, a detailed drawing of a high-heeled shoe, possibly a Mary Jane style, is shown. It has a pointed toe, a high stiletto heel, and a strap across the middle of the foot. The shoe is covered in a dense, stippled pattern. On the right, a person is depicted walking on a tightrope. The person is wearing a high-heeled shoe and is in a dynamic, balancing pose. The background shows a simple structure of the tightrope and some clouds.

As Full of Thrills as a Roller Coaster

And they just arrived. That they were made this week is as evident as the hands on the clock at 5 minutes to quitting time.

And to compare them to anything besides the Connellsville trolley is to compare a joy ride to a forced march.

We have seen other patterns so new and exclusive that Fifth Avenue is only a block away.

At the Theatres

THE SOISSON.

"FOOLISH WIVES."—When the parting curtain bares the screen for another presentation of "Foolish Wives," remember that for every minute that it is shown thereon more than $5,000 has been spent on its production. But you will forget to think in terms of money as you watch the unfolding of the drama, gaze in fascination at a world more strange than the customs of a savage land—a world of wealth and wanton folly and fashioning frivolities; the creed of whose devotees is self-indulgence, whose ambition, the perfect achievement of nothing. Without parallel in the world's history the exotic life of Monte Carlo has created its own atmosphere—an atmosphere possible of screen presentation only by the production down to the smallest detail of the surroundings, the magnificent Casino, the Cafe de Paris, the chateaux and villas, the gardens and the seas; the streets, the cosmopolitan crowds—their types and costumes, their mode of life; the supreme reign of the queenly and glorious women—their intrigues, extravagances and adventures. It is in this manner that more than a million dollars in money—a seeming eternity of strenuous activity on the part of thousands of people, and nearly two years in actual time, have been spent in the production of "Foolish Wives." Thus, "Foolish Wives" is not only the first real million dollar picture, but, without a doubt, it is the first costly picture that justifies its seeming extravagance.

The picture will be shown today and Wednesday.

THE PARAMOUNT.

"HEART'S HAVEN" is the attraction at this theatre today. Do you wish to see a good human story about real folks—a story that actually mirrors life, your life and the life of your neighbors? Do you wish to see a picture that will make you say, "I know a woman just like that," or "The author must have known a man like my son or my husband?" Then see "Heart's Haven," Benjamin B. Hampton's latest production and the newest Hodgkinson release.

In "Heart's Haven" the hero does not make a million, but he does win out over all his difficulties. The heroine does not marry a title but she does mate with the man she loves.

Carl Gamvort, whose popularity has been won as the hero of western dramas, shows his versatility in a new type of part, as the hero of every day life.

Clair Adams scores a success as the lovely and suffering heroine who meets with an accident and is finally cured by an act of faith.

Tomorrow, "Married People."

THE ORPHEUM.

"MORAN OF THE LADY LETTY" showing today and tomorrow. Some of the oldest inhabitants of San Francisco recalled the gold rush days because of the presence, some time ago in two of the city's largest hotels of groups of boarded rough-looking characters, who lounged about the lobbies every morning and evening. These persons were the men who figure as members of the crews of two ships which George Melford used in lining exterior scenes for "Moran of the Lady Letty," his latest production for Paramount, featuring Dorothy Dalton, which will be shown at the Orpheum today and tomorrow. These scenes were taken along the San Francisco waterfront and in outlying waters.

The rugged characters added a colorful touch to the lobbies, generally peopled with fashionably dressed men and women, and were the subject of considerable comment among those who studied the figures from shadowland.

Tex Jordan, Jack Hull, Jack Richardson, Eagle Eye, and other prominent character actors were among the grizzled individuals who played the crews of two ships. Dorothy Dalton has a strong role in the new production. Rudolph Valentino, co-star with Agnes Ayres in "The Sheik," is leading man.

Perryopolis

PERRYOPOLIS, Dec. 5.—Miss Ruth Bryan is visiting relatives at Vancouver.

Misses Anna Lowthers and Helen Robertson motored to Miss Robertson's home at Canton, Ohio, to spend Thanksgiving vacation.

Mrs. William Armstrong and Mrs. J. O. Stinger were in Uniontown yesterday.

William Essington was a business caller in Connellsville yesterday.

Mrs. C. T. Davidson and daughter, Betty, of Washington, Pa., are calling on friends and relatives here.

Stealing—and Proud of It.

Representative John W. Longley, from Kentucky, tells this one in Washington, says Everybody's.

A young attorney in Pikeville, who sought county honors, was on an electioneering tour in his district when he called at a house where the head of the family happened to be absent. He told the mistress who he was and that he was a candidate seeking votes at the coming election.

"And it's you!" she exclaimed.

"Why, of course my husband will vote for you, he'll be the one who got him cleared of stealing that meat."

"Say on the charge of stealing the meat," the attorney corrected her.

"Charge nothing!" said the woman.

"Why, part of that meat is hangin' up in the house yet."

Leaderless Orchestras.
There must be no despotism of leadership, not even in art, is the decree of the soviets. So in Moscow they have concerts given by orchestras without conductors. The soviet papers insist that the performances were just as good; and, what is more, the dignity of the performers was safeguarded by the absence of the conductor, with his baton, a symbol of tyranny, intolerable to free men.

The soviet press adds that these performances constitute the musical as well as the political ideal.

Gas Consumption Soars.
The daily average consumption of gasoline in the United States has increased 69 per cent in five years. During the first quarter of 1918 the average daily consumption was 7,088,000 gallons. During the first quarter of 1922 it was 11,889,000 gallons.

Conspiracy to Extort Charged To Councilman

By Associated Press.

MERCER, Pa., Dec. 6.—A warrant charging conspiracy to extort was sworn out here today by District Attorney R. L. Rickard for Stanley Jimro, a councilman of Farrell.

Judge J. A. McLaughlin ordered the district attorney to obtain the warrant after John Brutey of Farrell testified in court that the councilman demanded money from him offering "protection" in return. The protection, he said, covered the operation of a still and the sale of liquor. Brutey, found guilty of operating a still, was sentenced to serve four months. He told the judge that Councilman Jimro furnished him with a still and came to his home often to get some liquor. One day the councilman demanded some money, the witness said, and he refused. Fifteen minutes later, he added, he was arrested.

Daily Fashion Hints

CHRISTMAS THINGS
For the girl at school, the green sweater of silk and wool, striped with white and black will be most acceptable. The arrangement of the stripes in this sweater is particularly smart. Quite "up-to-the-minute" will be the gift of cabochon or buckle. The ones in the holly circle are, both of silver yet with imitation stones. A wide border of fine lace would bring joy to any feminine heart. The one draping out of its box is enriched by embroidery also.

Primitive Man Brewing Herbs

The savage cavemen sought for an elixir of life to give him strength, endurance and physical power to resist disease. He grubbed and culled from nature's medicinal herbs and plants to relieve and restore him in time of sickness—no found no elixir of life.

But the savage and cavemen of the past left to mankind his valuable herb and plant discoveries.

Away off in Oriental Europe in the famous Balkans live a race of people called Bulgarians, who consider themselves still young at 50, and only die at 80. "Thousand" live to be over 100 years. Sickness and disease is almost unknown among them.

For many centuries the Bulgarians have relied upon nature to keep them hale and hearty. They use an herb tea composed of roots, bark, leaves, herbs, plants and flowers.

This Bulgarian Herb Tea when brewed and taken hot at bedtime aids nature to remove the dangerous poisons from the system. Freshens and improves the blood, tones and stimulates the liver, and keeps the stomach and bowels in a healthy condition.

Bulgarian Herb Tea was first introduced in America about twenty years ago by H. H. Von Schlick of Pittsburg, Pa. Its fame has been so great that today it is used the world over and praised by millions of sufferers fighting disease and warding off old age weaknesses. They include happy girls budding into womanhood or women crossing precarious thresholds of life.

For centuries the Bulgarians have used this famous herb tea for nearly every human ill.

To break up colds quickly, a cupful taken hot at bedtime gives splendid results. Its gentle laxative qualities aid nature to relieve constipation, indigestion, biliousness, stomach and bowel trouble.

Just ask your druggist today for a trial package of Bulgarian Herb Tea, and you will never regret the time you spent in reading this item.—Advertisement.

The BLIND MAN'S EYES

BY WILLIAM MACHARG-EDWIN BALMER
Illustrations by R.H. Livingstone

COPYRIGHT BY LITTLE, BROWN, AND COMPANY

"How?" Eaton iterated.

"Yes, how, Mr. Eaton or Hillward or whatever your name is? How did you find him? The curtains were open, perhaps; you saw him as you went by, eh?"

Eaton shook his head. "No; the curtains weren't open, they were closed."

"Then why did you look in?"

"I saw his hand in the aisle."

"Go on."

"When I came back it didn't look right to me, its position had not been changed at all, and it didn't look right to me before. So I stopped and touched it, and I found that it was cold."

"Then you looked into the berth?"

"Yes."

"And having looked in and seen Mr. Santoline injured and lying as he was, you did not call anyone, you did not bring help, you merely leaned across him and pushed the bell and went on quickly out of the car before anyone could see you?"

"Yes; but I waited on the platform of the next car to see that help did come; and the conductor passed me, and I knew that he and the porter had found Mr. Santoline, as they thought, very peculiar action of yours was the act of an innocent man?"

The Englishman Took a Folded Paper From His Pocket, Opened It and Handed It to the Conductor.

"If I had been guilty of the attack on Mr. Santoline, I'd not have stopped or looked into the berth at all."

"If you are innocent, you had, of course, some reason for acting as you did. Will you explain what it was?"

"No—I cannot explain."

With a look of triumph Avery turned to Harriet Santoline, and Eaton felt his flesh grow warm with gratitude as he saw her meet Avery's look with no appearance of being convinced.

Avery made a vexed gesture, and turned to Connelly. "Tell her the rest of it," he directed.

Connelly, who had remained standing back of the two chairs, moved slightly forward. "Where shall I begin?" he asked of Avery; he was looking not at the girl but at Eaton.

"At the beginning," Avery directed.

"Mr. Eaton when you came to this train, the gatekeeper at Seattle called my attention to you," Connelly began. "Old Santony has recognized men with criminal records time and again. He's not even wrong out of it."

Eaton felt his pulses close with a shock. "He recognized me?" he asked quickly.

"No he didn't; he couldn't place you," Connelly granted. "He couldn't tell whether you were somebody that was wanted or someone well known—someone famous, maybe, but I ought to have kept you in the car because of that, from the very start. Now, this morning you claim a tale of woe for another man—a man named Hillward, and this train was bound to be all right—that is, by his answers and his account of himself he seems to be exactly what he claims to be."

"Did he read the telegram to you?" Eaton asked. "It was in code. If it was meant for him, he ought to be able to read it."

"No, he didn't. Will you?"

Eaton halted while he recalled the exact wording of the message. "No," Connelly paused and looked to Avery and the girl. "You'll wait a minute. Mr. Avery, and you, Miss Santoline, I won't be long."

He left the washroom and the sound of the closing of a door which came to Eaton a half-minute later told him that he had gone out of the front end of the car.

As the three sat waiting in the washroom no one spoke. Eaton understood fully that the manner in which the evidence against him was being presented to him was not with any expectation that he could defend himself; Avery and Connelly were obviously too certain of their conclusion for that, rather as it was being given thus under Avery's direction it was for the effect upon him. Eaton had understood this from the first. It was for this reason he had not attempted to deny having run Santoline's bell realizing that if he denied it and it afterward proved, he would appear in a worse light than by his inability to account for or explain a reason for his act. And he had proved right in this for the girl had not been convinced. So now he comprehended that something far more convincing and more important was to come, but what that could be he could not guess.

The conductor appeared in the door of the washroom followed by the Englishman from Eaton's car, Henry Standish. Connelly carried the sheet on which he had written the questions and asked Eaton and Eaton's answers.

"What name were you using, Mr. Eaton, when you came from Asia to the United States?" the conductor demanded.

Eaton reflected. "My own," he said. "Philip D. Eaton."

"Mr. Standish," Connelly faced the Englishman—"You came from Yokohama to Seattle on the Tamba Maru, didn't you? Do you remember this Mr. Eaton among the passengers?"

"No."

"Do you know he was not among the passengers?"

"Yes, I do."

"How do you know?"

The Englishman took a folded paper from his pocket, opened it, and handed it to the conductor. Connelly, taking it, held it out to Eaton.

"Here, Mr. Eaton," he said, "is the printed passenger list of the people aboard the Tamba Maru, prepared after leaving Yokohama for distribution among the passengers. It is unquestionably correct. Will you point out your name on it?"

Eaton made no move to take the paper; and after holding it long enough to give him full opportunity, Connelly handed it back to the Englishman.

"That's all, Mr. Standish," he said. Eaton sat silent as the Englishman after staring curiously around at left with his bulging, interested eyes, left the washroom.

"Now, Mr. Eaton," Connelly said, as the sound of Standish's steps became inaudible, "either you were not on the Tamba Maru or you were on it under some other name than Eaton. Which was it?"

"I never said I was on the Tamba Maru," Eaton returned steadily. "I said I came from Asia by steamer. You yourself supplied the name Tamba Maru."

"In case of questioning like that, Mr. Eaton, it makes no difference whether you said it or I supplied it in your hearing. If you didn't correct me it was because you wanted me to get a wrong impression about you. You weren't on the Tamba Maru, were you?"

"No I was not."

"You did come from Asia though, as your railroad ticket seemed to show?"

"Yes."

"From Yokohama?"

"The last port we stopped at before sailing for Seattle was Yokohama—yes."

Connelly reflected. "You had been in Seattle, then, at least five days, for the last steamer you could have come on docked five days before the Tamba Maru. In fact, Mr. Eaton, you had been on this side of the water for many as eleven days, had you not?"

"Eleven days?" Eaton repeated.

"Yes, for it was just eleven days before this train left Seattle that you came to the house of Mr. Gabriel Warden and waited there for him till he was brought home dead!"

Eaton, sitting forward a little, looked up at the conductor, his gaze fixed on Avery's instant, he gazed then to Harriet Santoline. At the charge, she had started, but Avery had not. The identification, therefore, was Connelly's, or had been agreed upon by Connelly and Avery between them, suggestion of it had not come from the Santonines. And Connelly had made the charge without being certain of it, he was watching the effect Eaton now realized, to see if what he had accused was correct.

"Isn't that so?" Connelly demanded. "Or do you want to deny that too and have it proved on you later?"

Again for a moment Eaton sat silent. "No," he decided. "I do not deny that."

"Then you are the man who was at Warden's the night he was murdered?"

"Yes," said Eaton. "I was there that evening. I was the one who came there by appointment and waited till after Mr. Warden was brought home dead."

"So you admit that?" Connelly glared, but he could not keep from Eaton a sense that by Eaton's admission of the fact, Connelly had been disappointed.

"All right Mr. Eaton," Connelly returned to his chair. "You are that man. So besides whatever else that means would be in Seattle a few days and yet you were the last person to get aboard this train which left a full hour after its usual starting time. Who were you waiting to see get on the train before you yourself took it?"

Eaton sat silent. To what was Connelly waiting up? The probability, now rapidly becoming certain, that in addition to the recognition of him as the man who had waited at Warden's—which fact anyone at any time might have charged—Connelly knew something else which the conductor could not have been expected to know—this disconcerted Eaton to more by its indelicacy. And he saw that the other was not a mere

WE OUGHT TO LIVE FOREVER SAY EXPERTS

"Barring accidents and disease we ought to live forever" is the conclusion drawn from experiments conducted by the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. This conclusion, published in "Scientific American," assumes increased interest in the light of recent theories of rejuvenation.

The reason we do not actually live forever, says a writer in the Scientific American, is that the organs which compose the complex human mechanism are interdependent and failure in one even a minor organ, induces failure in others.

Dr. Alexis Carrel, noted surgeon with the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research, whose remarkable work has done much to prolong life. Dr. Carrel is a native of France.

"It seems that medical science has pretty well accepted the conclusion that the physical will be long of many of these organs is controlled by certain glands, which have been merely disregarded heretofore because their function was not understood. These new experiments indicate that the action of the glands and consequently many bodily functions depend in part or entirely upon an element of food which although it has not yet been isolated has been arbitrarily named vitamins."

"Recently the discovery has been made that the food richest in vitamins is yeast of the sort we have always thought useful chiefly for making bread and beer. Diseases which appear to improve from the yeast treatment include stomach troubles of all kinds, anemias, run-down and nervous conditions, loss of weight and appetite, boils, blackheads and other blemishes. The improvement appears to come from the stimulative effect of the vitamins on the glands, especially those of the digestive system combined possibly with some other unexplained properties of yeast."

"Will it not be possible when the vitamins themselves their effect on the glands and the effect of the glands on the body are better known to live for two hundred or five hundred years?"

"We may reasonably conclude from the scientific evidence already at hand that such a thing is plausible at least. There is a growing volume of evidence, perhaps not conclusive but making the probability very great that old age is induced principally by the failure of certain glands which exert mysterious but a very real influence upon all of the bodily tissues. Finally the life and vigor of the glands seems dependent upon the mysterious food element, vitamins."

GIANT TREE ON LONG ISLAND

Experts Say Sycamore Is Nearly Four Hundred Years Old and Good for Century More.

"Old Sycamore," the giant on the place of James Hill at Whetstone, L. I., which recently won the biggest tree on Long Island contest conducted by Normal Taylor of Brooklyn Botanic gardens, was born only 17 years after Columbus landed at San Salvador in 1492. It was eighty years old when Hendrick Hudson first saw Long Island in 1609.

This is the opinion of Mr. Taylor and other experts who have examined the giant sycamore, the New York world states. Its age is estimated between 300 and 400 years more likely the latter it is said. The trunk near the ground is 24 feet in circumference and some of the limbs half way up even are larger than the trunks of many trees which claim to be patriarchs.

The height of "Old Sycamore" has not been ascertained but it towers over the landscape in lordly fashion. Mr. Hill says that 90 years ago the place was used by the county butcher as his home. His beef when slaughtered was hung on chains from "Old Sycamore's" limbs. One of the chains was there when Mr. Hill bought the place.

During the past 105 or 120 years after the forest was cut away, soil from neighboring hills was washed down and filled around the tree to a depth of 15 feet. This was verified six years ago, Mr. Hill says when a tree expert gave "Old Sycamore" the first doctoring of its life.

The tree is said to be in splendid condition and good for a century or so more.

FOLLOWED SEA FIFTY YEARS

Retired Commander Has Many Stories of Adventure Accumulated During Half Century on Ocean.

Capt. J. W. Christie, formerly commander of the White Star Dominion liner Canada, has retired after sailing the seas for 51 years.

Captain Christie first went to sea when only ten years old and during the next half century participated in many interesting experiences.

In 1877, while still an apprentice, he sailed on the old sailor Seaboard when that vessel was employed to carry the famous Hudson's Bay fur trade to the Dardanelles at the time of the Russo-Turkish war. The fleet of transport vessels reached their destination and landing native troops to occupy Cyprus then found the Turks in trenches close to the beach and were forced to commence the operation under fire. The young apprentice was given charge of a light machine gun and mounted on its bare back swam his steed toward the beach and the Turks. The animal according to the captain's account of the affair reached shore well ahead of all competitors and then despite the ear-splitting efforts of its rider dashed headlong toward the Turkish lines. Pulling as he might nothing would check the beast's ardor until one of the Turkish soldiers from the trenches enemy shot at it and turned it again toward the sea. The apprentice regained his ship in a fitly none the worse for his unusual experience but with a strong and lasting distaste for international complications.

Terrible.

Grace-Mabel is sorry now that she married that foreign gentleman.

Grace—Why? Don't you know? Did she tell you?

Grace—How interesting.

Trained for It.

Visitor—I don't understand how these chorus girls have the courage to appear on a stage.

Stage Manager—The producer makes them work in it for a month or two. By that time they have the sight of clothes—Da-they-they Jack of Lutein.

Sought by the Office.

You say he's working under the sheet? Did the office seek the man?

Yes. And it took two deputies to bring him in.

INVENTION ENDS POVERTY

Section Hand Can Buy a New Home if He Wants To.

Fortune after apparently turning her back on Emory Kelly of Coffeyville Kan., a railroad section foreman for years has smiled upon him as the result of a successful patent he has completed on a rail switch device.

Kelly, the father of nine children and the step-father of eight others is said to have been making his home in a box car near the right of way while experimenting with his device for months.

For the completion of a small rail frog device Kelly is said to have received $22,000 bonus from a St. Louis manufacturing concern, and will receive $5 on each device sold.

Kelly is reported, will purchase a better home for his family but intends to remain in his present employment.

FINDS $500 IN $1 CUPBOARD

Lucky Farmer Turns Coins Over to Former Owner's Estate.

William Meers, a farmer living near St. Charles, Mo. found a tin can containing $500 in gold in an old cupboard he recently purchased for $1 at a nearby house.

The cupboard came from the estate of an aged relative, who had bequeathed himself Meers turned the $500 over to the estate of the dead man.

Wood and Furniture.

There are thousands of different species of wood in the world, but no two square inches are alike. The same wood may be plain, raw or quarter sawed but there will be a world of difference in the two. No one inch in a board is like another. No will you ever find two pieces of wood of the same texture.

Green are developed very much as a human being is developed. They have vertical pipes or pores which carry water and mediums of minerals through their trunks and limbs just as the blood feeds the human body.

There are no products in the world whose history will compare with those fashioned from wood. Civilization itself has evolved along with the evolution of wood and its uses. Civilization would have been impossible without wood. Nations which have succeeded most are those which have followed the hardwood belt.

And all these facts must be weighed when furniture and better furnished Australian homes are considered.

"No, he was prompting."

BEAUTIFUL YOUNG GIRL IS "JEKYLL AND HYDE"

Drug Addict Is Society Belle and Becomes Woman of the Streets.

A feminine "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" is under observation in a hospital in Boston, Mass., where she was taken suffering from the effects of drugs. Physicians and experts are trying to determine which of the dual personalities—the society belle or the street woman—revealed in her recent bursts of raving is her real one.

"Ernestine Weldon" was the name she gave when admitted to the hospital. It developed then that the girl had been dismissed from another hospital twenty-four hours earlier. The fair-haired girl gave her age as nine years but refused to tell more.

At one time she appears to be a naive, blushing school girl, gushing about social entertainments and events her voice registering finely modulated pitch and charm. Elegance, culture, wealth, and position are disclosed during the domination of this personality, which is more than half the time.

Suddenly the pleasant smile turns to a hard snarl and the pleasing voice veers to the raucous high pitched shriek of the street slattern. This personality raves of the theater and vaudeville in which the tells of having played three years in a "sister act." Her speech becomes vulgar and shameless. Through it all she pleads for a "flarry to come and kiss her. With the mention of his name "Bernice" pleads for drugs, offering to pay any amount for them. Police believe the maddest young woman in a mental hospital but have failed thus far to establish her identity.

ROMANCE OF LONG AGO

Sweethearts of Civil War Days Get Marriage License.

A romance of Civil War days culminated at Pittsburgh the other day when a marriage license was issued to John Danks, aged seventy-eight years, a retired farmer, and Miss Amanda M. Thomas, aged seventy-six years. They were sweethearts when that war began, they told newspaper men, but Danks joined the colors and they drifted apart.

Since then both married, Danks going to Oregon, where he farmed until last year, when his wife died. Returning to Pittsburgh, he learned that his old sweetheart, a widow, was living in the Hazelwood district. He called on her and for several weeks they met daily and discussed days gone by. Finally the path of destiny led them to the marriage license office.

The consensus of opinion is that a Senegalese who trains on brandy can hardly stand up to a gentleman who trains in a shipyard.
